Yuck. I'm also dealing with a Baptist church that is staging a big march on a clinic this weekend. Amazing these servants of the lord can so easily espouse judgment and vitriole so shamelessly

A Message from the Chancellor

Dear Faculty and Staff,

We would like to make you aware of a demonstration that will be occurring on November 18 from 10:20 a.m. to 10:50 a.m. on a sidewalk, which is City of Greensboro public property, near the corner of Spring Garden and Josephine Boyd. This event is taking place in a public space, not subject to permits or processes associated with UNCG, and is allowed and protected by very clear law associated with freedom of speech.

Although UNC Greensboro does not and cannot regulate speech based on its content, University officials and employees do have a constitutional right to express our views. I want all of you to know that the beliefs espoused by this group run counter to our established values of diversity and inclusion. I do not agree with nor support any of the views expressed by this group.

We recognize that this event may impact our campus community. Students, faculty, and staff who do not wish to engage or experience this event may consider appropriate options to avoid the area for the duration of this activity. We expect all in our community to operate in a civil manner.

As always, Student Affairs staff will be available to provide support resources and answer questions, because we recognize this event may affect and impact our students, faculty, and staff.

Additionally, students can always contact the Dean of Students Office (336.334.5514), the Campus Violence Response Center (336.334.9839), the Office of Intercultural Engagement (336.334.5090), or the UNCG Counseling Center (336.334.5874) if they wish to seek additional support.

Faculty with any questions about our policy should contact their department chairs. Employees seeking support may contact the UNCG Employee Assistance Program (800.630.4847) or access services through guidanceresources.com (WebID: UNCG).

Sincerely,

Chancellor Franklin D. Gilliam, Jr.
